Dear Elizabeth Pinkham,

After researching internships for this upcoming summer I noticed this software engineering position at Salesforce on indeed.com. This position seems perfect for me because my main interest in computer science is app development and maintenance. My work at Centimark Corporation gave me experience with the Salesforce application and I could tell from your quick maintenance patches and knowledgeable support team, this is a company and software I am interested in working for.

Work Experience: From my position as Operations Manager at Poseidon Products I used my leadership and teamwork skills to manage a successful team of employees. After this experience I was hired by Centimark Corporation where I work with a team to conduct market research in order to increase our customer base. I use applications such as Salesforce and Mapanything to incorporate tech into marketing and data analysis.

Coursework: At Appalachian State University I expanded my Computer Science knowledge by building a multimedia database and website with a team of 4 other students where we programmed in php, HTML, and SQL. In Java I have programmed multiple Graphical User Interfaces and built applications such as a website for a fictional international airport.

As I continue to gain knowledge in Computer Science I look forward to an internship that will test my skills and help me learn from a team of experienced individuals in this field. I will follow up with you Friday to set up a time for us to explore this position.

Thank you for your time,
